This letter serves as my official recommendation of Drew Landis as a marketing and business copywriter.

He is a well-qualified individual with significant working experience in both marketing and copywriting for over ten years.

Drew has excellent communication skills, a persuasive and confident approach to creativity and the ability to strategize high-profile projects.

He is an expert at turning information into useful copy that not only sells products but informs consumers. While working for our company he wrote original copy for our website, produced, edited, and published instructional videos for many products, and managed a staff that planned and implemented all aspects of marketing for the company.

In addition to working with Drew at Greenhouse Megastore I've had the pleasure of witnessing him and his business partner plan, open, and market their own company in the community. With his strategic marketing plan they've now successfully expanded into multiple products and locations.

I assure you that hiring such a confident, competent, and creative person will be advantageous for your company.
